Upon collection of the vehicle all items will be returned, as found, to the client.

Panel Beating

The term 'panel beater' is used to describe a person who repairs vehicle bodies back to their factory state after having been damaged. This is done by using many skills, such as planishing, various other metalworking techniques, welding, use of putty fillers and many more. Accident repair may require the panel beater to either repair or replace various parts of a vehicle. These parts may be made from various metals, including various steels and alloys, many different plastics and fibreglass

Services

Spray Painting

This refers to a painting technique where a device sprays a coating (paint, ink, varnish, etc.) through the air onto a surface. The most common types employ compressed gas – usually air – to atomize and direct the paint particles. Spray guns evolved from airbrushes and are usually distinguished by their size and size of the spray pattern they produce. Air gun spraying uses equipment that is generally larger than airbrushes (which are usually used for smaller detailed work such as fine art). Thus air gun spraying is typically used for covering large surfaces with an even coating of liquid. Spray guns are either automated or hand-held and have interchangeable heads to allow for different spray patterns.

Paintless Dent Repair

Paintless dent repair (PDR) – also known as paintless dent removal – describes a method of removing minor dents from the body of a motor vehicle. A wide range of damage (such as hail damage) can be repaired using PDR, just as long as the paint surface is intact.
